INFANT MORTALITY. NEW YORK, Oct. 15, 1868.

To the Editor of the Herald:—
In response to the communication of X., which spears in your issue of this morning, relating to the subject of infant mortality in New York, a solution of the subject of t cet which Dr. Stephen Rogers, of this city, so raphically and truthfully laid before the public in is paper read at the meeting of the County Medical ociety of the 14th of September, I beg you will persit me to say, as a member of that society, there is as yet no cause for the despera-which K. seems to entertain of any useful on in that all-important matter on the part of the ty. Although the meeting alluded to by X., on the 12th instant, for the discussion of held on the 12th Instant, for the discussion of the subject of that paper, was almost wholly monopolized by members of the Metropolitan Board of Health, and by the representatives of other institutions, which the paper had rather roughly priticised, and the valuable time of the society wasted in listening to the unnecessary, uncalled for, disorderly, not to say indecent attacks upon the author of that paper, I can assure X. that the society still lives, and that whatever the people may do at the county and city of New York has by no means terminated its labors in the great field which Dr. Rogard paper laid before it. White that meeting was fain to adjourn quietly upon that disgusting exhibition of passion and prejudice, thereby giving the dirty waters of municipal administration time to settle, let X. rest in the certainty that the society has a calm but determined purpose to continue the battle against infancticd in all its varied forms.

And in order that the Herald may fully comprehend the merits of this contest and may have an opportunity to exert its powerful influence for humanity and for truth, I herewith send a copy of the Medical Record for the lat of October, which contains the said paper.

A HORRIBLE WIFE MURDER. (From the Quincy (Iil.) Herald, Oct. 10.)

(From the Quincy (III.) Herald, Oct. 10.]

Alstyne's Prairie was the scene of a horrible tragedy night before last, which resulted in the death of a woman at the hands of her husband, William M. Maynard. Maynard, in company with his wife, started for Missouri, and had camped on Alstyne's Prairie, in the vicinity of the Prairie House. Owing to some of his unlawful acts a warrant was issued for his arrest night before last. Maynard was taken to the Court House during the time Captain Hawley was speaking, but broke away from the officer and fied mito the crowd in front of the Court House and made his oscape. He had a revolver which he solemly avowed he would use before he would go to jail. It appears that after making his escape he immediately repaired to his wagon on the prairie, at which place his wife was, and taking a ride from his wagon shot her dead. He stated to persons who conversed with him after the deed was committed that his wife was skilled by the accidental discharge of the rifle while she was endeavoring to get into the wagon. He told other stories of a contradictory nature, however, which left no room for doubting that he committed the deed. The old hady was killed about ten o'clock at night. The nurdever, instead of calling an inquest to be held on the body, threw it into his wagon and started for his former place of abode, Big Neck, about twenty miles from this city, at which place he arrived at daylight yesterialy morning. Mrs. Maynard had in killing his wife is at present a matter of mystery. A warrant was placed in the hands of parties late yesterday afternoon and before this time we presume he is under arrest.

Mrs. A. H. Stephens. This gestleman petured.

MR. A. H. STEPHENS.—This geatleman returned to his home at Crawfordy le last evening, after an absence of three days in our city, during which time hundreds had an opportantly, which they had long desired, of once more hearing his voice, which, in the better days of the republic, had so often been litted up in behalf of constitutional liberty. Again many saw and heard him for the first time on Thursday night at the theatre, where he read extracts from his great work on the "War of the States." The selections from this exhaustive treatise upon the history of the formation of the government of the Chittod States, and the true principles thereof, were most appropriate, and negated to convey to the mind of the thinker clearly the fundamental doctrine of the Jederal republic—the "nation of nations." Mr. Stephens read for two hours, his clear, plercing voice holding up admirably. As he read, with his eyes on his book, a kerned, with his eyes on his book, as stranger might have funcied he was insending to some pale faced youth reading the words of the great statesman; but ever and anon, as he closed his book, and by repetition and gesture sought to enforce the great truths just read, the old fire beamed again in those searching eyes—his emaciated form seemed to grow as its voice rang out in ciarion tones the "certain sound" of constitutional liberty.—Atlanta Intelligencer.
